Then she moves onto what she is exposing and in this and other videos she will assert case workers are often FBI or CIA in cover ups maskquerading under treatment plans. She asserts in this video and other thugs that are patients become Confidential Informants and may make death threats to the Target or other illegal actiions towards the Tareget.]

Jen Moore before her death: This past weekend, someone from my channel made some hideous accusations. They've since deleted them, which is good-they were told to delete them. I hope they don't come back, because I don't want to be the person who has to send out screenshots or text messages. I don't care about fighting with other YouTubers. I want everyone to be successful-especially anyone sharing information that helps expose corruption in our country, reestablish the rule of law, and protect children. I wish them all the success in the world.

I watch their channels. They may have a different perspective or come from a different angle because of their life experiences. My background includes law enforcement, and many people don't know I also have a graduate degree in clinical psychology. That gave me a peek behind the curtain of the psychiatric world, where I discovered that many of these professionals were CIA or CIA contractors-often employed to do cover-up jobs in treatment centers and similar places.

About a year and a half ago, I started sharing information anonymously with another YouTube channel-many people know who that is. They were mainly focused on weapons and drugs, which I also have a history of investigating. I shared information with Congress as well.

Then last summer, I was jumped at my home by four people. I was told it was an attempted hit job. They knew my name and told me to keep my "effing mouth shut." They beat me severely, but I survived. The response from law enforcement grew weaker and weaker. The lead detective was suddenly removed from my case, and strange things began happening.

I've been a whistleblower, looking to law enforcement for help, and I've been gang-stalked and harassed for years. So as this continues…

The real reason for these attacks are this book. Many like I assert the slander is to justify community attacks thus sladner is generated by role plays of false flag events to incite community based attacks and ostracism of Targeted Individuals on the Watchlist. I do not see this much different anywhere I am on US land and I can not get out of the country so far. I am not the only who "knew too much" and I offer that here.

Few knew of her courage standing firm in shaking hands knowning death may come soon if she continued to tell the Donegan biography and Kennedy assassination truth tied to elites still in power today generation after generation.

The real story she and I were writing is told in these two files.

The smears insured I was socially isolated and that I would never torture a cat in my apartment or photograph a child from my "treehouse" that overlooked children playing in public. Thus I get turned down on apartmenet leases or the are broken in the middle of the lease.

I had wondered why I was targeted and subject to Espionage operations and I traced it to my fathers and mothers military service and the DARPA DOD NASA need to coverup the Space Race and Nuclear Triad disaster of the Cuba and Pacific Missile Crisis, that two decades after the the atomic bombing of Japan my father was a part of, and that later crisis between Cuban and Chinese missiles during my birth under continuing Manhattan Project work at Manhattan Beech California in a Catholic/CIA operated DNA results testing hospital.

My Sword broken, hers strong, for her to me, my Strength

> "In going where you have to go, and doing what you have to do, and seeing what you have to see, you'll dull and blunt the instrument you write with. But I would rather have it bent and dull and know I had to put it to the grindstone again and hammer it into shape and put a whetstone to it, and know that I had something to write about, than to have it bright and shining and nothing to say, or smooth and well-oiled in the closet, but unused." - Ernest Hemingway

It was from her to me I found the deeper answers, the deeper truths, the deeper understanding, and the meaning of courage, that in her.

MK Ultra and WW I and WW II and Cold War history are still being covered up

> Jen Moore: so I'm with a group of a lot of are connected to a group a lot of whistleblowers who are also targeted individuals and there are other people that are targeted for speaking out, soldiers and different government workers and victims

> it's a it's a very very harsh and sad story of what what happens to us and maybe sometimes we can't even get into more details about that but for now I've been telling a series of interviews on a little bit about my history but what what I learned through that and what I learned also through training in clinical psychology and what I learned in various other ways and a series of interviews that I've done through with farmer Jones on his YouTube and so I posted two of those interviews I believe so far what I'm gonna do on this one is I'm gonna post all four that I've done so you can listen to them in succession

> it really goes into all the way back to World War one it goes into MKULTRA goes into child trafficking it goes into the kind of philosophies behind it the reasons the motivations leads into Nazi Germany and the formation and the CIA how the MKULTRA programs and various mind-control programs and pedophilia and child trafficking and really these horrible ratlines and drug lines and things like that were brought into our country under the color of law

but in black budgets (covert illegal profiteering in illegl operations) the different people that were involved (in trafficking black market bank accounts) different identities (Glorian Donegan) that were changed in the ways that I came into this knowledge witnessed some of this learned some of this through kind of extraordinary ways put some pieces together and have had a story to tell

with a lot of other people and came to a point in my life where I could no longer be silent especially regarding the the children (of McMartin now adults) that I'm aware of in the and their stories and so that's why I'm on this mission

it's risky I have you know I've been assaulted and threatened many many times and but I'm determined to tell the truth and get the truth out there so that the American people have a chance to know this truth and hopefully help rescue some of these people and also give whistleblowers a chance to open up and come forward

I hope at some point that the President of the United States President Trump will ask for the whistleblowers to go forward and speak to him and tell him their stories and their stories of targeting and their stories of retaliation and their stories their lives being taken over and shut down in intimidation and fear and death threats and all the things that happen to those of us that stand up for the role law and Senate for the Constitution of the United States - Jen Moore

Trapped Truth: PTSD & Letting Go

I'm not gonna say it out loud, but I'm here on a mission. First thing I want to say is thank you-there are many, many people who have helped me get here to do what I call a mission. What that mission is has a lot to do with what Hugh talks about when he says "These people are sick."

> "The people are sick. They're tired. They're angry. They're depressed. And they're blaming it on the wrong people".
> This line is from Hugh Grant's character in the HBO miniseries The Undoing (2020), where he plays Jonathan Fraser, a charismatic but morally ambiguous doctor. The quote surfaces during a pivotal courtroom scene in which Jonathan is trying to sway the jury by painting a picture of societal discontent and misdirected blame.

A lot of you know what that means. You've seen arrests, you've seen very evil things coming out about activities that many people-politicians, public figures, and others-are involved in. And many more are involved in covering it up. My whistleblower journey is about exposing that cover-up, and that's why I'm here right now.

When I arrived today, I was reminded that the last time I was here was about six, maybe six and a half years ago. Back then, I was deep in my journey as a whistleblower. I had developed extreme post-traumatic stress disorder-PTSD-from being targeted and from other things I'll get into later. A lot of whistleblowers suffer from PTSD. Mine was severe. At times, I was paralyzed-unable to move or do anything. That last visit was another mission: I came to get help from specialists who worked with soldiers and people who had been in combat and targeted. I thought that was the answer.

So I stayed and lived through the next six and a half years trying to work it out. But I never really found true healing, I guess you could say. Still, I worked with a lot of soldiers, law enforcement, victims, witnesses, and whistleblowers. And one thing I learned through all that work is this: PTSD is not just about trauma. One of its major components is what I call "trapped truth."

People with PTSD carry stories inside them-many stories. Stories of fear, pain, and experiences buried deep within. That truth gets trapped. And it's trapped for many reasons: people don't want to hear it, people are scared of it. Even doctors, psychiatrists, and psychologists are scared of it. Many don't understand the rage that comes from trapped truth. That's why people with PTSD-whistleblowers, victims, witnesses-need to get that truth out of their bodies, their souls, their minds. It doesn't mean every little detail, but at least the core story. Someone who's experienced it needs to hear it. I'm one of those people.

Seven years ago, I could barely function in this city. I had someone with me, but I could hardly be out among people. Sirens would shake me. I'd be trembling, unable to hold a camera steady. Now I'm steady. My journey has been about walking into that fear. I used to run away from the sound of a fire engine. Now I face it.

In the past, those sirens and that noise would send me into panic-shaking, racing thoughts, wanting to crawl into a hole. That's PTSD. But I made the decision to go to DC, to take these trips, to help other people-other whistleblowers, other victims-tell their trapped truth. That's part of my own healing. Letting my own trapped truth come out. Telling my story. Walking into my greatest fears and worries. Pushing past the fear of being targeted-even though that might still be happening-and doing something greater than myself: helping a community at large.

That's why I'm here this weekend. I'll give short updates as I go along, but I can't share the exact details just yet.

Okay, I thought I'd give a little update on my mission this week. You can see I'm at a gorgeous location-although it's probably a hundred degrees already here, so it doesn't feel so great outside. But it is beautiful.

I'm getting ready to have a very important meeting with a couple of people. I just wanted to give an update again. When Hugh says things like "these people are sick," or you hear some of the stories coming out of places such as Veterans on Patrol in Arizona, or some of the arrests being made regarding the harming of children-really take it to heart.

The things I have known beforehand were hard enough. But to be in the presence of people who have suffered so much really grabs your heart and literally kind of breaks it in two. It's just unimaginable trauma and horror. We've got to find a way in this country to stop this.

That those in power would abuse their power in such a devastating, systemic, continuous way-that people would live all of their childhoods experiencing some of these things, and even into young adulthood, and then be terrorized for the rest of their lives to never speak about these absolute monster crimes-is beyond comprehension.

As much as a lot of people don't want to hear about some of this stuff, as Q said, this stuff is coming out. I know it is as well. The part that I play in it involves some of my knowledge and experience in the past, and my understanding of some of the things that came into play regarding my whistleblowing, as well as many other things attached to it.

I can't give real specifics just because it's not safe enough. We're going to have a meeting in a little bit, and I'm telling you-my heart feels like it's been ripped in two just hearing some of the stories I've heard. I'll be giving more information on that soon.

This is also my PTSD journey. It's part of my "trapped truth," as I said yesterday-knowing these things to be true and not being able to speak them out loud. These things, and many others, being silenced. That silencing, that pushing down of your personal experience-whether you're a whistleblower, a victim, a survivor, or a witness-is devastating.

A lot of witnesses have been silenced, especially by the government. Our government never wants you to speak. They threaten you-and even worse things than that. The power of that coming against you as an individual, as a child-the abuse of power is such a traumatic wounding and such a betrayal of all that you believe to be true. You question who the safe people are and who aren't.

We're trying to correct some of that now. Many of the whistleblowers I'm involved with are trying to correct that now-to let the American people know that there are really good people who have tried for a long time to stop some of these very bad things. We become victims as well, as we are silenced with threats and many other ways.

That's kind of the update, and we'll go on from here.
